17th European Conference on Digital Government
Military Academy
Lisbon, Portugal

12-13 June 2017

ECDG 2017 is an opportunity for academics, practitioners, government workers and consultants from around the world who are involved in e-Government research to come together and exchange ideas.

As governments seek to remodel and restyle their services, e-Government continues to stir interest and attention. New issues such as e-democracy, e-citizenship, interoperability, e-identity and e-voting have become core elements in the development of public sector delivery. Vital questions are posed which link technological development and a streamlining of government services to more social based values of inclusion, accessibility and power relationship ratios.

ECDG 2017 is your opportunity to engage with this dialogue by presenting research, theory and application in the field of e-Government.

The 17th European Conference on Digital Government (ECDG 2017) provides a scientific forum for members from the academic, government, public sector and industry communities to meet and share ideas.

ECDG 2017 will provide opportunities for people working and researching in the field to come together both formally and informally to share their knowledge and expertise.

Topics for ECDG 2017 may include, but are not limited to:

- Applications of e-Government
- Challenges to Digital Government
- Interoperability
- e-Government 2.0
- Digital Democracy/e-Participation
- Evaluating the economics of Digital Government
- Legal, agency, trust and governance issues in Digital Government
- Accessing Digital Government with mobile devices and the internet of things
- Digital Government and Sustainable Development
